

Jamie Hooper

Jamie Hooper founded Inclusive Cultures in January 2021, an independent expert consultancy on equality, diversity and inclusion in sport.

Jamie has 10 years experience at the forefront of equality, diversity and inclusion best practice in the sport and physical activity sector, having previously worked at Swim England and Sport England, ensuring that everyone can access sport and physical activity and have a great time when they are doing so.

Jamie has been on the frontline of both LGBTQ+ and ethnic minority participation over recent years and has been involved in driving progress in these areas forwards from the community to the board room.

Jamie is also a very proud Non-Exec Director and Advisory Board Member of a number of organisations including Sport For Confidence, the Black Swimming Association, and the Federation of Gay Games.

Jamie is also a co-founder of the Include Summit - the UK's largest conference for equality, diversity and inclusion in sport. The inaugural took place on 8th & 9th March 2022 and will take place again next year on the 3rd & 4th May 2023 in Manchester.
