Welcome

Welcome to the 2025 IAPS Senior Leaders' Conference.

We are delighted to welcome you to a day designed by Senior Leaders, for Senior Leaders – a rare opportunity to pause, reflect and grow in a space dedicated entirely to your leadership journey.

This year's conference theme, "Leading with clarity and compassion in turbulent times," invites us to explore what it truly means to lead with both purpose and humanity in an increasingly complex world. With challenge often comes opportunity – and today is about embracing both.

Throughout the day, you will hear from inspiring voices across the educational landscape as they explore leadership under pressure, authentic self-awareness, and the joy and courage it takes to lead well. You will also have the chance to engage in coaching-style breakout sessions, allowing you to apply the day's thinking directly to your own professional context.

We encourage you to come equipped with your school's mission, vision, and values, as well as your own job description and school development plan, to help ground today's sessions in your lived reality.

Whether you are joining us to strategise, connect with peers, or simply make space to think, today is yours.

Thank you for being part of this vibrant community of leaders. We hope the conversations, challenges, and insights shared today will stay with you long after you leave.

Speakers

Katherine Bluck

Katherine Bluck is a distinguished educational leader known for her unwavering commitment to fostering independence and resilience in young learners. Currently serving as the Head of Professional Development at IAPS, in previous roles she has been a Head of two IAPS schools as well as held leadership roles at Lambrook and the Stephen Perse Foundation.

Katherine exemplifies clarity and compassion in her leadership, with a passion for guiding teams through the complexities of modern education with a steady hand and a warm heart. Her leadership style is characterised by strategic thinking, empathy, and a deep commitment to the personal and professional growth of her colleagues and students.

Kathryn Gorman

Kathryn is an experienced education leader and consultant, with over 25 years in both the independent and state sectors, including as Head of an all-through independent school. Her leadership has been shaped by times of complexity and crisis—including the Covid-19 pandemic, where she championed compassionate values-led approaches to strategic decision-making and cultural change.

Now Founder and Director of Clarion Education, Kathryn works with schools, trusts, and public benefit organisations to strengthen leadership, governance and culture. Her consultancy supports leaders to navigate uncertainty with clarity and confidence—always with people at the heart of the process.

Kathryn is a certified workplace mediator and accredited investigator and is currently training as a Level 7 Executive Coach. She is Chair of Governors of a primary school serving a diverse community and Chair of Education at a leading independent performing arts school. Kathryn also serves as a Non-Executive Director of an online alternative provision for neurodiverse young people.

A Fellow of the Chartered College of Teaching and contributor to policy forums and think tanks, Kathryn believes the future of leadership lies in collaboration, kindness and courageous curiosity. She holds a Masters in Educational Leadership and School Improvement from the University of Cambridge.

Liz Robinson

Liz Robinson, CEO and co-founder of multi-academy trust Big Education, is dedicated to changing how education is delivered in England, motivated by her belief in the transformative power of schools. Liz looks to create a holistic education that integrates academic learning with personal development and practical skills to impact on the wider community. At her former school Liz used her values to radically reshape the culture and shift the approach to help empower others into thoughtful action. She later co-founded Big Education to unite like-minded individuals, promoting collaboration and innovation, utilising her core values to advocate for radical change in the education sector. Liz emphasises that all significant change is rooted in great leadership, which is the focus of her Big Education Leadership Programme.

Rachel McGill

Rachel McGill, co-founder of Resilient Leaders Elements, is on a mission to make world-class leadership development accessible to all by equipping people with the tools they need to succeed. After becoming the youngest captain in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps at 23, Rachel has attained almost 30 years of leadership development experience. As co-founder of Resilient Leaders Elements, Rachel promotes exploring the different foundations and facets of resilient leadership, fostering development through challenges and feedback loops. She specialises in developing resilient leaders through training and supporting next-level leadership coaches and consultants to make measurable differences in how individuals lead themselves and others.

Bish Muir

Bish Muir's introduction to marketing began with a Fairy Liquid advert when she was five, sparking a lifelong passion that has shaped her career. She has 30 years of experience, and has worked with renowned clients such as Marks & Spencer, BP, and Unilever. Bish holds a Level 6 Diploma in Marketing from the Chartered Institute of Marketing, which has equipped her with advanced knowledge. After 25 years in a commercial setting, she transitioned to the independent school sector, first as a marketing manager, then as Director of External Relations. Bish is now a freelance Marketing and Admissions consultant, supporting schools with their strategies and recruitment.

Dr Leo Dudin

Dr Leo Dudin has 15 years of experience in education, but began his career in industry before retraining to teach chemistry at Abingdon School. He then moved to Uppingham School as Head of Chemistry and later Head of Science, completing an MEd in Educational Leadership at the University of Cambridge. His experience in teaching and tutoring within a co-educational boarding school has provided a passion for ensuring that academic challenge and pastoral care co-exist, and for fostering trusting working relationships between pupils and staff. In his position as Deputy Head Academic at Oakham School, Leo works to shape the culture and climate of learning, encouraging optimism within academic journeys and maintaining a balance between high academic standards and exemplary pastoral care.

Dr Emma Kell

Dr Emma Kell has over 25 years of experience as a teacher and leader in UK schools and is the founder and director of Those That Can Ltd. She has written several articles, blogs and books on the joys and challenges of teaching and completed her doctorate on teacher wellbeing and work-life balance. Emma works with professionals within and beyond the world of education to provide research-based, practical sessions to promote wellbeing and effectiveness. She believes in helping people to be the happiest, most efficient and authentic versions of themselves and is passionate about the link between wellbeing and success. Emma aims to encourage fulfilment by reminding people that the key to success is following their moral compass and knowing their worth.

Facilitators

Elizabeth Draper

An experienced educator and curriculum consultant, Elizabeth Draper brings over 15 years of teaching and leadership across primary and secondary education. As Head of Humanities at Willington Prep School and a local authority governor, she specialises in curriculum design and development. Her collaborations with the BBC, Nickelodeon Jr, and SkyTV reflect a unique ability to blend classroom insight with creative industry innovation, producing engaging, curriculum-rich content that inspires young learners and supports strategic educational vision.

Alice Heywood

Alice has held several senior roles across many areas at the Stephen Perse Foundation for a number of years. As Director of Educational Strategy, Alice uses her experience to drive innovation and creativity across to keep the Foundation's Junior Schools in Cambridge and Saffron Walden at the forefront of education.

As a member of the Executive Alice has also been involved in projects with the finance, IT and human resources teams. She is also a team inspector for ISI. As an experienced coach and mentor, Alice looks forward to facilitating discussion about developing and emerging strategies with you.

Tory Gillingham

Tory has been supporting and working for AMCIS since April 2004. Before becoming the AMCIS Managing Director, Tory spent 11 years working in independent schools' marketing; firstly as Marketing Director at Pocklington School and then as Marketing and Development Director at St Peter's School, York, where she spearheaded the formation of the St Peter's School Foundation.

With her extensive experience in independent schools marketing and her time as Managing Director, Tory is able to answer many of the questions and queries raised and asked by members who call her on the AMCIS Helpline.
