

912 SEND: 'How can I help you?' Identifying Special Educational Needs in Children

Date: Monday 4 March 2019

Venue: Broadway House, Tothill Street, Westminster, London SW1H 9NQ

Cost: Online £229 (non IAPS members – additional £100)

All teachers are teachers of children with special educational needs. Teaching such children is, therefore, a whole school responsibility. Teachers are the first people that children meet at school, when they begin their school journey and each subsequent day that they go into class. Teachers are responsible not just for children's education but for their daily welfare and teachers, and their assistants are in the best position to notice the needs - long before the SENCO might become involved. Attendees to this course will learn about the signs and symptoms that children can display when they need some extra help. They will be taught about what to look out for, when to look for it, and how to spot difficulties quickly. The course will also cover the next steps and how to begin the process of assessment, talking to parents and fundamentally how to start making a difference.

Audience: Early Years Teachers, Prep School Teachers, SENCOs

Objectives: This course will look at:

- Understanding when something is not quite right
- What therefore is wrong?
- Recognising the signs and symptoms of common and not so common special needs
- How to spot difficulties early on
- Next steps – what do you do now you think something needs addressing?
- Talking to parents
- Moving forward from identifying a need - how to start making a difference

Course Director: Claire Thurlby, IAPS SEND Subject Adviser

Speaker: to be confirmed
